We respectfully submit that we properly refused to instruct the jury on the appellant's requested language of "[a] jury is never required to impose a death sentence" insofar as this language is inconsistent with Pennsylvania law.⁷⁰ In this regard, 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(c)(iv) states that the trial court must instruct the jury that the verdict must be a sentence of death if the jury unanimously finds at least one aggravating circumstance specified in subsection (d) and no mitigating circumstance or if the jury unanimously finds one or more aggravating circumstances which outweigh any mitigating circumstances. The verdict must be a sentence of life imprisonment in all other cases.

Id. (emphasis added).⁷¹ Thus, Section 9711(c)(iv) mandates that the jury must render a verdict of death if either the jury unanimously finds (1) at least one aggravating circumstance and no mitigating circumstances, or (2) one or more aggravating circumstances which outweigh any found mitigating circumstances. See e.g., Commonwealth v. Abu-Jamal, 553 Pa. 485, 720 A.2d 79, 117 (1998) (concluding that prosecution "correctly stated that once the jury determines that one or more aggravating circumstance outweighs any mitigating circumstance, section 9711(c)(iv) mandates that the sentence be death"); Commonwealth v. Morales, 549 Pa. 400, 701 A.2d 516, 523 (1997) ("[A]s long as there exists one aggravating circumstance and no mitigating circumstances, as is the case here, the death penalty is required as a matter of law."). Accordingly, this particular allegation of error concerning our rejection of the appellant's proposed instruction that a death sentence is never required lacks merit.⁷²

G. Statutory Review of Death Sentence/Jury's Failure To Find Mitigating Circumstances

In his seventh and eighth matters complained of in his original concise statement, the appellant argues that the jury's death sentences were the product of passion and prejudice and were otherwise arbitrary because the jury ignored and failed to consider and weigh (1) the mitigation factor of brain damage, and (2) the sixteen non-statutory mitigating factors as part of the catchall mitigating circumstance, all of which the appellant claims that he established by a preponderance of the evidence. As discussed below, we respectfully submit that these allegations of error lack merit and the jury's determination of four death sentences in this case was not the product of passion or prejudice, or was otherwise arbitrary.

⁷² We note that in accordance with Pennsylvania law, we also instructed the jury that it could "consider sympathy or mercy as a reason to impose a sentence of life imprisonment[, which] must be founded upon evidence any one or more of you find to be a mitigating circumstance." [Day Six Tr., at 220.]

Pursuant to 42 Pa. C.S. 9711(h), the Supreme Court automatically reviews death sentences. Section 9711(h) provides as follows:

(h) Review of death sentence.—

(1) A sentence of death shall be subject to automatic review by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania pursuant to its rules.

(2) In addition to its authority to correct errors at trial, the Supreme Court shall either affirm the sentence of death or vacate the sentence of death and remand for further proceedings as provided in paragraph (4).

(3) The Supreme Court shall affirm the sentence of death unless it determines that:

(i) the sentence of death was the product of passion, prejudice or any other arbitrary factor; or

(ii) the evidence fails to support the finding of at least one aggravating circumstance specified in subsection (d)

(iii) Deleted.

(4) If the Supreme Court determines that the death penalty must be vacated because none of the aggravating circumstances are supported by sufficient evidence, then it shall remand for the imposition of a life imprisonment sentence. If the Supreme Court determines that the death penalty must be vacated for any other reason, it shall remand for a new sentencing hearing pursuant to subsections (a) through (g).

Id. Thus, once a trial court imposes a death sentence the Supreme Court has the obligation pursuant to Section 9711(h) to “review the record to ensure the evidence sufficiently supports the first degree murder conviction and the finding of aggravating circumstances, and that the sentence was not the product of passion, prejudice, or other arbitrary factors.” Commonwealth v. Dick, 602 Pa. 180, 978 A.2d 956, 958 (2009) (citing 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(h) (3)(i)-(ii)).

1. The Jury's Findings of Aggravating Circumstances

Before proceeding with the appellant's contentions concerning the mitigating factors, we respectfully submit that the Commonwealth introduced overwhelming evidence that both aggravating circumstances found by the jury beyond a reasonable doubt existed in this case.⁷³ The Commonwealth introduced evidence concerning two aggravating factors, namely 42 Pa. C.S. §§9711(10) and (11).

Section 9711(10) provides that the jury can find an aggravating circumstance exists if:

the defendant has been convicted of another Federal or State offense, committed either before or at the time of the offense at issue, for which a sentence of life imprisonment or death was imposable or the defendant was undergoing a sentence of life imprisonment for any reason at the time of the commission of the offense.

42 Pa. C.S. §9711(10). In interpreting this section, the Supreme Court has determined that “[b]y putting in the language ‘or at the time of the offense,’ the Legislature clearly intended this aggravating circumstance to include the case of multiple murders.” Commonwealth v. Cross, 508 Pa. 322, 339, 496 A.2d 1144, 1153 (1985).⁷⁴

Here, as the appellant pleaded guilty to and, thus, was convicted of four first-degree murders, we respectfully submit that sufficient evidence exists to sustain the finding of the aggravating circumstance under Section 9711(d)(10). See e.g., Commonwealth v. Moser, 519 Pa. 441, 447, 549 A.2d 76, 79 (1988) (concluding appellant’s three convictions for first-degree murder for killing ex-wife and two minor children were sufficient to satisfy aggravating circumstance under Section 9711(d)(10)).

As for the aggravating circumstance under 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(d)(11), this section provides for an aggravating circumstance when the Commonwealth proves that “[t]he defendant has been convicted of another murder committed in any jurisdiction and committed either before or at the time of the offense at issue.” Id. In this case, the Commonwealth introduced the following evidence on this aggravating factor:⁷⁵ In December 1991, the ⁷³ We note that the appellant conceded that the Commonwealth had introduced sufficient evidence on both aggravating factors to warrant their submission to the jury for consideration. [See Day Five Tr., at 164.] We also note that, for some reason, contrary to its findings relating to the other three victims, the jury did not find both aggravating circumstances existed as to the victim, Dennis Marsh. Instead, the jury only found that the aggravating circumstance under 9711(d)(11) existed.

[t]he clear import of the first part of subsection (d)(10) is to classify the commission of multiple serious crimes as one of the bases upon which a jury might rest a decision that the crime of which the defendant stands convicted, and for which they are imposing sentence, merits the extreme penalty of death.

Id., 496 A.2d at 1153 (quoting Travaglia, 502 Pa. 474, 496, 467 A.2d 288, 299 (1983)).

appellant stabbed (eight times) and killed fifty-six-year-old Donald Richard in Mr. Richard's home in Allentown, Pennsylvania. [Day Two Tr., at 56, 58, 59, 71-72; Commonwealth's Exhibit 39.] At the time, the appellant was eighteen years old. [Day Two Tr., at 78.] After the appellant killed Mr. Richard, the appellant stole Mr. Richard's wallet and vehicle and fled to Arkansas. [Id. at 59-60, 61, 62.]⁷⁶ When the police finally located the vehicle, they located Mr. Richard's wallet and a knife with Mr. Richard's blood on it. [Id. at 62, 65.] The Commonwealth charged the appellant with Criminal Homicide, and the appellant eventually pleaded guilty to third-degree murder on November 5, 1992. [Id. at 66-68; Commonwealth's Exhibits 36, 37.] The Honorable Lawrence J. Brenner sentenced the appellant to a minimum of ten years to a maximum of twenty years for this offense. [Id. at 69-70.]⁷⁷

We respectfully submit that the appellant's conviction for third-degree murder for the killing of Mr. Richard in 1991 was sufficient evidence to satisfy the aggravating circumstance under Section 9711(d)(11).

2. The Jury's Failure To Find Mitigating Circumstances

As for the appellant's claims concerning the jury's consideration (or lack thereof) of the mitigating factors, the appellant has failed to assert a basis for relief. The Supreme Court has stated that '[a] capital jury is not required to find a mitigating factor presented by a defendant, even if the Commonwealth fails to present evidence rebutting the existence of that factor.' Commonwealth v. Walter, 600 Pa. 392, 966 A.2d 560, 568 (2009). In more general terms, the fact-finder is free to believe all, part, or none of the evidence, and credibility determinations rest solely within the purview of the fact-finder. Commonwealth v. Treiber, 582 Pa. 646, 874 A.2d 26, 30 (2005); Commonwealth v. Williams, 578 Pa. 504, 854 A.2d 440, 445 (2004). It follows directly from the above principles that a jury is not obliged to believe testimony, including expert medical or psychiatric testimony, offered by a defendant. See Commonwealth v. VanDivner, 599 Pa. 617, 962 A.2d 1170, 1177 (2009); Commonwealth v. Henry, 524 Pa. 135, 569 A.2d 929, 939 (1990). Furthermore, the weight to be ascribed to any testimony is a determination that rests exclusively with the finder-of-fact. Treiber, supra at 30; Williams, supra at 445.

⁷⁶ The appellant used Mr. Richard's credit cards to purchase food, gas and other miscellaneous items from Pennsylvania to Arkansas. [Day Two Tr., at 64.]

We have also made explicitly clear that an appellate court cannot substitute its judgment for that of the fact-finder: It is axiomatic that once a jury has been properly instructed on the nature of aggravating and mitigating circumstances as defined in the statute, as well as on the statutory scheme for balancing one against the other, it is not for reviewing courts to usurp the jury function and to substitute their judgment for that of the jury.

Treiber, supra at 30-31 (citation omitted).

Commonwealth v. Flor, 606 Pa. 384, 998 A.2d 606, 626 (2010).

In this case, the appellant sought to prove the following mitigating circumstances by a preponderance of the evidence:

(2) The defendant was under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance.

(3) The capacity of the defendant to appreciate the criminality of his conduct or to conform his conduct to the requirements of law was substantially impaired.

(8) Any other evidence of mitigation concerning the character and record of the defendant and the circumstances of his offense.

42 Pa. C.S. §§9711(e)(2), (3), (8). Regarding Section 9711(e)(8), this section “is known as the ‘catch-all’ [sic] mitigator, as it may encompass a wide range of evidence, including life history, mental health status, physical or psychological abuse, childhood neglect, substance abuse, etc.” Flor, supra, 998 A.2d at 626 (citations omitted).

With respect to the catchall mitigating circumstance, the appellant attempted to introduce evidence concerning: (1) head trauma as a youth, (2) physical abuse, (3) domestic violence, (4) poverty, (5) parental neglect, (6) familial dysfunction, (7) sexual abuse, (8) abandonment, (9) family alcohol history, (10) he has spent his adult life in prison, (11) he accepted responsibility for his crimes and pleaded guilty, (12) his amenability to life imprisonment, (13) prison institutional failure, (14) he suffers from traumatic brain injury, and (15) he was intoxicated at the time of the offenses. [Day Six Tr., at 203-204.]⁷⁸ With regard to the first nine factors, the appellant presented the testimony of some childhood friends, family and caregivers, including childhood friends, Rhonda Maples, Justin Cook Letwich,

Jake Gibson, and Russell Drake, his family (or former family members), Joseph Bearden and Thelma Richardson, and caregiver, Caroline Lavern Cook.⁷⁹ He also introduced the testimony of a mitigation specialist, Ms. Luck, and a forensic toxicologist, Dr. Fruncillo. As for the appellant's prison history, amenability to life imprisonment, and acceptance of responsibility of the homicides, the appellant introduced the testimony of Sines, Walter Chruby, Dr. Johnson, and the record from the guilty plea proceeding. Finally, as to the mitigating circumstances under 9711(d)(2) and (d)(3), the appellant presented the testimony of Dr. Cooke and Dr. Gur concerning their opinions that he was suffering from brain damage at the time of the homicides.

a. Evidence regarding the appellant's childhood.

During the testimony of some of the aforementioned witnesses, they testified that during the appellant's childhood: (1) he suffered various incidents of physical and verbal abuse suffered at the hands of his father; (2) he was involved in multiple accidents in which he suffered seemingly numerous significant head injuries for which he did not seek or receive proper medical attention; (3) he often did not live for extended periods of time at home with his parents; instead, he often lived with his grandmother who was being cared for by Caroline Lavern Cook; (4) when he did live with his parents, the family house did not have running water, operating toilets, or electricity; (5) his parents would often not visit with the appellant during holidays or otherwise while he was living with his grandmother; (6) Mickey Ballard's obsessive consumption of alcohol on a daily basis; (7) his father and mother would engage in physical confrontations; (8) his parents committed various incidents of neglect or abandonment of him as a young child in terms of caring for him and meeting his basic needs; and (9) his possible exposure to sexual abuse when he was six years old by a female approximately eleven years older than him. Despite the testimony of these witnesses, the Commonwealth noted during cross-examination that, inter alia, the appellant appeared to deny any head injuries, physical abuse, or poor relationships with his family members when interviewed by prison officials. [See e.g., Day Three Tr., at 144-46.] In addition, the appellant's father's ex-wife, Thelma Richardson, generally stated that she did not observe any physical abuse and that she believed Mickey Ballard was a good father. [Id. at 205-206.] Nonetheless, the totality of the appellant's evidence appeared to indicate that, at a minimum, he had incidents involving serious head trauma for which he did not receive medical attention, he went for lengthy periods of time outside of the care of his parents (but cared for by his grandmother), and his father had a history of drinking.

⁷⁹ We previously discussed the appellant's evidence relating to some of these factors as part of our analysis of the Commonwealth's rebuttal evidence concerning the appellant's relationship with his father.

Even if the jury found the appellant's witnesses and the testimony of the mitigation specialist credible, the jury did not have to conclude that the appellant's head trauma as a youth, physical abuse, domestic violence, poverty, parental neglect, familial dysfunction, sexual abuse, abandonment, and family alcohol history, constituted a mitigating circumstance. As the Court has already explained in addressing a similar issue:

[E]ven assuming that the jury found much of the testimony of the family witnesses credible, nothing in our statutory or decisional law required the jury to conclude that Appellant's difficult childhood rose to the level of a mitigating circumstance with regard to the murder of Officer Gregg, a brutal crime that Appellant committed at 38 years of age. It was for the jury—not Appellant and not this Court—to decide whether Appellant's difficult childhood constituted a mitigating circumstance. See [Commonwealth v. Walter, 966 A.2d 560, 568 (Pa. 2009)] ('The law is clear that the task of determining the existence of mitigating factors is for the jury alone.') Contrary to Appellant's contention, the fact that the jury did not find a mitigating circumstance grounded in Appellant's early life history does not constitute evidence that the jury ignored or improperly weighed the testimony of the family witnesses. Rather, it was properly within the jury's discretion as fact-finder to reject that testimony.

Flor, supra, 998 A.2d at 628.

Similar to the Court's conclusion in Flor, the jury here did not have to find that any of the aforementioned non-statutory factors satisfied the catchall mitigating circumstance. There is no indication that the jury ignored or improperly weighed this testimony; instead, the jury had discretion as the finder to reject the testimony and not find the catchall mitigating circumstance.

b. Evidence related to the appellant's incarceration, guilty pleas, and amenability to life imprisonment.

The appellant also contends that the jury improperly weighed and otherwise failed to find that he satisfied the catchall mitigating circumstance insofar as he showed that he has spent his adult life in prison, he accepted responsibility for his crimes and pleaded guilty, he is amenable to life imprisonment, and there was "prison institutional failure." Similar to the appellant's previous argument, the jury did not have to find that the appellant proved a mitigating circumstance under the catchall provision because the appellant spent most of his adult life in prison and accepted responsibility for the homicides by pleading guilty.

Additionally, and as explained in more detail earlier in this opinion, the jury did not have to determine, despite Dr. Johnson's testimony, that the appellant would be amenable and suitable as a nonviolent life prisoner. The Commonwealth effectively cross-examined Dr. Johnson regarding his conclusions, and the jury was free to disregard that testimony in its role as the fact-finder. Moreover, the jury could conclude that Dr. Johnson's assessment of the appellant's institutional history was entitled to little weight, and the jury was free to assess the weight of the appellant's incidents while incarcerated.

3. Evidence of Traumatic Brain Injury, Brain Damage, and Whether the Appellant Was Under Influence of Extreme Mental or Emotional Disturbance

The appellant further claims that the jury should have also found as mitigating circumstances that he suffered traumatic brain injury, had brain damage, and had alcohol intoxication at the time of the offenses. In addition, the appellant indicates that the jury should have found that he was under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance.⁸⁰ As indicated above, the appellant offered into evidence witnesses describing his alleged head injuries as a child or teenager, the testimony of Dr. Cooke and Dr. Gur about the issue of brain damage, and Dr. Fruncillo's testimony and the hospital records about the level of the appellant's alcohol consumption on the date of the killings.

Regarding the appellant's evidence of his brain damage, we have already described Dr. Gur and Dr. Cooke's testimony that the appellant was suffering from organic brain damage at the time of the homicides and how this brain damage and inebriation may have affected his actions that day. Nonetheless, even though the Commonwealth did not introduce expert testimony in rebuttal, we note that "a jury is not obliged to believe testimony, including expert medical or psychiatric testimony, offered by a defendant." Flor, supra, 998 A.2d at 626.

Once again, the Court's analysis in Flor is directly applicable here. In Flor, the appellant claimed that the jury improperly failed to find the mitigating circumstances under Sections 9711(e)(2) and (e)(3) in part because he introduced expert witnesses showing that he suffered from mulmultiple mental illnesses and had mild to moderate brain damage caused by a series of head injuries and chronic alcohol abuse. Id. at 628-30. Thus, the defense experts all concluded that “Appellant had difficulty controlling his behavior and his actions. Furthermore, the experts agreed that, on the day of [the] murder, Appellant’s difficulty with impulse control came to the fore, exacerbated by his consumption of alcohol and recent stressful events in his life.” Id. at 630.

Similar to this case, the Commonwealth in Flor did not introduce any mental health experts or medical experts to contradict the defendant’s expert witnesses. Instead, the Commonwealth challenged the defense experts’ testimony by pointing out gaps in the evidence, narrowing the reasonable inferences from the testimony, and suggesting alternative possible interpretations. Furthermore, much of the evidence presented during the Commonwealth’s case-in-chief could be considered at odds with the defense expert’s portrayal of Appellant as incapable of controlling his behavior and actions on the day of [the] murder.

Id. at 631. Thus, “[t]he jury could very well have concluded that the defense experts’ opinions were simply incompatible with all this evidence of deliberate, premeditated, directed, controlled, and ordered actions by Appellant during his violent shooting spree in the emergency room.” Id.

The Court then pointed out that the trial court had properly instructed the jury regarding the jury’s assessment of the parties’ respective arguments. Id. Also, the appellant failed to offer any indication that the jury failed to follow the court’s instructions other than their failure to find any mitigating circumstances for three of the four victims. Id. at 632. Moreover, contrary to the appellant’s assertion, the evidence was rebutted by the Commonwealth and the jury “acted well within its prerogative” in failing to conclude that the appellant’s mental state was such that it would qualify as a mitigating circumstance. Id.

Here, as described earlier in this opinion, the Commonwealth thoroughly and effectively cross-examined Dr. Cooke and Dr. Gur concerning their findings of brain damage and its effect on the appellant’s actions on June 26, 2010. In this regard, Dr. Cooke admitted on cross-examination that, inter alia, none of his conclusions regarding the appellant’s cognitive deficiencies would have prevented him from being able to specifically intend to kill the victims or determine right from wrong. [Day Four Tr., at 258-60.] Also, some of the appellant’s I.Q. scores were above average. [Id. at 262-65.]

Dr. Cooke also noted that the appellant’s prison records indicated that the appellant was diagnosed with antisocial personality disorder and adjustment disorder with depression. [Id. at 265.] As for the adjustment disorder, Dr. Cooke explained that this disorder could be caused by the appellant’s experiences in jail. [Id. at 266-67.] Concerning the antisocial personality disorder, Dr. Cooke admitted that the appellant appears to “fit” that disorder, which is characterized by, inter alia, a failure to conform to social norms, deceitfulness, aggressiveness, and lack of remorse. [Id. at 268-70.]

Dr. Cooke also explained that a finding of traumatic brain injury did not “necessarily lead to physical aggressiveness.” [Id. at 273.] The Commonwealth also discussed the appellant’s letter to Ms. Luck in which he essentially rehashed his homicides. [Id. at 274-79.] Moreover, Dr. Cooke admitted that the appellant had the mental ability to walk away when, for example, his girlfriend would see another man or if a man made a homosexual pass at him. [Id. at 292-93.]

Regarding Dr. Gur’s testimony, although we previously discussed the Commonwealth’s comprehensive cross-examination of Dr. Gur, we note again that during the Commonwealth’s cross-examination, Dr. Gur admitted that, among other things, (1) he never reviewed the radiologist’s reports from the MRI exam or PET scan, (2) the radiologist’s report indicated that the MRI of the appellant’s brain was “unremarkable,” (3) he could not say whether his findings of brain damage caused the appellant to kill the four victims, and (4) he never met with the appellant.

Similar to the testimony in Flor, in addition to the Commonwealth’s thorough cross-examination of Dr. Cooke and Dr. Gur, the jury could have considered the evidence presented during the Commonwealth’s case-in-chief to conflict with the appellant’s experts’ conclusions about the effect of the brain damage on the appellant’s actions. In particular, the Commonwealth’s evidence showed that upon leaving the ACCC, the appellant immediately sought to purchase a knife without having consumed alcohol beforehand. In addition, the appellant had a few hours to contemplate his actions even after purchasing his knife, as he slowly made his way to the Residence to commit the homicides. There was no indication that the appellant was aggressive or hostile to any person that he met with after leaving the ACCC that day, or that he acted inappropriately towards the monitor at the ACCC when the monitor would not let the appellant leave the facility without turning over his check. Further, upon his initial interactions with law enforcement and hospital personnel, he admitted what he had done. The appellant even had the presence of mind to write a check out to himself from Dennis Marsh’s checkbook at some point while he was inside of the Residence. Thus, the jury could very well have concluded that the appellant’s experts’ opinions were “simply incompatible with all [of] this evidence of deliberate, pre-meditated, [sic] directed, [and] controlled” actions by the appellant during his violent and brutal killings at the Residence on June 26, 2010.

Furthermore, as also explained in part above, we properly instructed the jury to consider all of the evidence presented during the proceedings and the parties’ arguments. [Day Six Tr., at 181-223 (jury instructions).]

There is no indication that the jury did not follow our instructions, and the jury did determine that the appellant had proved the mitigating circumstance that he was under the influence of extreme mental and emotional disturbance as to the victim, Denise Merhi. Thus, it would appear that the jury did properly consider and weigh the evidence in this case, but declined to find that the appellant's brain damage and mental illnesses were such as to operate as mitigating circumstances with respect to three of the victims. We respectfully submit that the jury "acted well within its prerogative" in failing to find the mitigating circumstance under Section 9711(e)(3) with respect to all of the victims and the mitigation circumstance under Section 9711(e)(2) with respect to the victims, Steven Zernhelt, Alvin Marsh and Dennis Marsh.

4. The Evidence of the Appellant's Alcohol Intoxication on the Date of the Homicides

The appellant also argues that the jury failed to properly weigh the evidence insofar as it did not find that his voluntary intoxication on the date of the homicides acted as a mitigating circumstance under the catchall factor. As with the appellant's other experts, the Commonwealth thoroughly cross-examined the appellant's expert witness, Dr. Fruncillo, regarding his opinions about how the appellant's level of intoxication affected his conduct on June 26, 2010. In this regard, Dr. Fruncillo admitted that the appellant's alcohol use was not a legal excuse or justification for the homicides, and stated that he was "not here to say that alcohol is going to make you do wrong when you should be doing right[; instead,] I'm here to say that alcohol increases aggressiveness." [Day Four Tr., at 77.] Additionally, the Commonwealth's evidence showed the premeditated and deliberate actions by the appellant that day. Therefore, the jury was free to reject the appellant's contention that his alcohol consumption should serve as a mitigating circumstance under the catchall factor.

5. Whether the Death Sentences were the Product of Passion, Prejudice or Any Other Arbitrary Factor

As shown above, we respectfully submit that the Court should uphold the four death sentences imposed in this case because the Commonwealth submitted sufficient evidence to prove each of the two aggravating factors in this case. We also submit that, as discussed earlier, the appellant's claims about the victim impact evidence presented by the Commonwealth are without merit and we properly admitted the evidence in this case. In addition, this evidence was not so unduly prejudicial as to implicate any due process concerns under either the United States or Pennsylvania Constitutions. Moreover, the appellant's weight of the evidence claims are improper and unsupported by a review of the evidence presented. Furthermore, there is no indication that the jury did not follow our instructions in which we properly instructed the jury about the parties' respective burdens of proof, as well as how to weigh and evaluate the evidence presented in this case. Accordingly, the appellant's four death sentences were not the result of passion, prejudice, or any other arbitrary factor, but rather were grounded in the voluminous evidence properly presented in the penalty hearing in this case.

H. Weight of the Evidence—Death Sentence

The appellant contends that his death sentence was against the weight of the evidence. Unfortunately, this claim is improper. The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has clearly stated that “[t]here is no legal mechanism by which a sentence of death may be overturned by this Court on the basis of an improper weighing of aggravating circumstances and mitigating circumstances.” Commonwealth v. Reyes, 600 Pa. 45, 963 A.2d 436, 441 (2009). Instead, the Court is limited to reviewing the death sentence in accordance with 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(h)(3), and “the weighing process is ‘exclusively’ a question for the factfinder, [sic] be it a court or jury.” Id. (citations omitted). Accordingly, this particular claim on appeal is unsustainable.⁸¹

I. Objection to the Verdict Slip

In his final matter complained of in his original concise statement, the appellant contends that we erred in failing to include all of the mitigating circumstances that he offered under the “catch-all” [sic] mitigating circumstance on the verdict slip. During our charge conference, we accommodated the appellant's request to inform the jury about the fifteen different non-statutory mitigating circumstances the appellant believed he introduced evidence about during the sentencing hearing. [Day Six Tr., at 60, 62-64.] The appellant also requested that we list each of the fifteen non-statutory factors on the verdict slip. [Id. at 61.] We refused the appellant's request, and we informed the appellant that we would only include the statutory language on the verdict slip. [Id. at 61.]⁸² As discussed below, we respectfully submit that the verdict slip in this case was proper.

Rule 807(a) of the Pennsylvania Rules of Criminal Procedure states that the trial court “shall furnish the jury with a jury sentencing verdict slip in the form provided by Rule 808.” Pa. R.Crim.P. 807(a) (emphasis added). In addition, Rule 807(b) provides that “[b]efore the jury retires to deliberate, the judge shall meet with counsel and determine those aggravating and mitigating circumstances of which there is some evidence. The judge shall then set forth those circumstances on the sentencing verdict slip using the language provided by law.” Pa. R.Crim.P. 807(b) (emphasis added).⁸³

In this case, we complied with Rule 807(a) insofar as our verdict slip is identical to the form verdict slip provided by Rule 808. In addition, when referring to the aggravating and mitigating circumstances supported by the evidence in the case, we listed those aggravating and mitigating circumstances in the appropriate places in Part I.B.1. and 2. of the verdict slip. In this regard, we quoted the statutory language in 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(d)(10) and (11) regarding the two aggravating circumstances at issue and 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(e)(2) and (3) concerning the two mitigating circumstances. Further, and with particular importance to the issue raised here by the appellant, we precisely followed the form verdict slip in Rule 808 by including the statutory language for the “catch-all” [sic] mitigating circumstance in 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(e)(8) as the final mitigating circumstance in Part I.B.2. See Pa. R.Crim.P. 808.⁸⁴

We also note that the Supreme Court has previously rejected the appellant’s argument under virtually identical circumstances in Commonwealth v. Eichinger, 591 Pa. 1, 915 A.2d 1122 (2007). In Eichinger, the appellant had argued that the trial court erred by failing to accept his request to separately list particular mitigating circumstances covered in the “catch-all” [sic] mitigator in Section 9711(e)(8) on the verdict slip. Id. at 1145. The appellant sought the mitigating circumstances of “1) good work record; 2) average in school; 3) conformed to prison life; 4) cooperated with authorities; 5) absence of a father; and 6) an Eagle Scout.” Id. The trial court refused to list those mitigating circumstances on the verdict slip; instead, the trial court listed only the statutory language of Section 9711(e)(8) on the verdict slip and then read each of the requested factors in the jury instructions. Id.

In contending that the trial court erred, the appellant argued that the United States Supreme Court mandates that capital defendants be evaluated as uniquely individual human beings under ⁸³ We note that the Supreme Court has explained that the non-statutory mitigating factors such as those presented here are not mitigating circumstances. Commonwealth v. Reyes, 600 Pa. 45, 963 A.2d 436, 440 n.7 (2009). Instead, those factors are “not presented to the jury as mitigating circumstances but rather as factors the jury should consider in deciding whether to find the ‘catch-all’ [sic] mitigating circumstance set forth at 42 Pa. C.S. §9711(e)(8).” Id. Moreover, even if one or more jurors found that multiple non-statutory mitigating factors were established by the defendant, “that finding [would] not metamorphose those factors into additional statutory mitigators.” Id. at 442.

⁸⁴ We note that the form verdict slip set forth in Rule 808 specifically lists the statutory language in Section 9711(e)(8) as number (4) of the mitigating factors in Part I.B.2. See Pa. R.Crim.P. 808. We also note that the Comment following Rule 808 indicates that “[t]he list of aggravating and mitigating circumstances completed by the judge in Part I, and by the jury foreperson in Part II, should use the language provided by law for each circumstance.” Id., comment.

the Eighth Amendment. Lockett v. Ohio, 438 U.S. 586, 604–605, 98 S.Ct. 2954, 57 L.Ed.2d 973 (1978). This requires the sentencing jury to consider the possibility of ‘compassionate or mitigating factors stemming from the diverse frailties of humankind.’ Woodson v. North Carolina, 428 U.S. 280, 304, 96 S.Ct. 2978, 49 L.Ed.2d 944 (1976). Any aspect of a defendant’s character or record and any of the circumstances of the offense that the defendant proffers as a basis for a sentence less than death should be considered as a mitigating factor. Lockett, 438 U.S. at 604, 98 S.Ct. 2954. Further, any factors offered in mitigation must be given independent weight. Id. [The appellant] then argues that any non-statutory factor offered in mitigation must reach the jury and it must be given equal weight to any of the statutory mitigating factors. But, the sentencing verdict slip used in [the appellant’s] case did not list each mitigator offered. It simply offered a ‘catchall’ provision. Lumping these individual mitigating factors into one category on the verdict slip indicates to the jury that the non-statutory mitigating factors do not carry equal weight next to the statutory factors. [The appellant] argues that under the Eighth Amendment, it is necessary that these factors be listed separately so they can be given appropriate weight.

Id. at 1145-46.

The Court initially rejected the appellant’s argument that the United States Supreme Court’s decision in Lockett required the trial court to individually list each non-statutory mitigating circumstance on the verdict slip. Id. at 1146. Instead, the Court indicated that a trial court satisfies Lockett if the court presents the catchall mitigating factor to the jury as part of the trial judge’s charge. Id. (citing Commonwealth v. Lesko, 509 Pa. 67, 81, 501 A.2d 200, 207 (1985)). The Court then pointed out that the trial court had instructed the jury on the two statutory mitigating factors at issue in the case and then repeated the statutory language of the catchall mitigating factor before referencing each of the non-statutory mitigating factors raised by the appellant. Id. (quoting trial court’s jury instruction). The trial court also informed the jury that the verdict slips were merely a recording device and that the jury had to follow the judge’s instructions. Id.

The Court determined that the trial court’s jury charge was satisfactory because it properly incorporated each of the appellant’s mitigating factors and permitted the jury to consider any mitigating factors it found by a preponderance of the evidence. Id. In addition, the trial court properly charged the jury regarding the purpose of the verdict slip and the importance of following the court’s instructions on the law. Id. Further, the Court concluded that “[i]t was not necessary that the non-statutory mitigators be listed separately on the verdict slip in order to meet this mandate.”

Id. at 1147. Thus, the Court held that the appellant failed to prove a constitutional violation by the non-inclusion of each non-statutory mitigating factor on the verdict slip. Id.

Similar to the facts of Eichinger, we strictly followed the verdict slip form in Rule 808 in preparing the verdict slip in this case, including referencing the statutory language of the “catch-all” [sic] mitigating factor.⁸⁵ In addition, we respectfully submit that we thoroughly, accurately, and appropriately instructed the jury concerning all of the mitigating circumstances introduced by the appellant that were supported by evidence in the case. [Day Six Tr., at 200-204.] We also indicated to the jury that it could consider as part of the catchall mitigating factor “anything else that you have heard at the penalty phase concerning any of the circumstances of the offense or about the defendant’s background or character as a mitigating circumstance if you choose to do that.” [Id. at 203.] In addition, we note that the appellant did not object to any portion of our charge dealing with the explanation of the aggravating and mitigating factors and the manner in which the jury must analyze and evaluate those factors. Accordingly, we respectfully submit that the appellant’s allegation of error relating to the verdict slip is without merit. See Commonwealth v. Miller, 560 Pa. 500, 746 A.2d 592, 604 (2000) (concluding verdict slip prepared in accordance with former Rule of Criminal Procedure 358A was appropriate even though it did not specifically enumerate mitigation evidence presented by appellant).

III. CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated herein, we respectfully submit that the appellant’s allegations of error are without merit and the four sentences of death entered on May 17, 2011 should properly be affirmed.

⁸⁵ We also note that the Commonwealth had prepared a proposed verdict slip that contained additional language relating to the specifics of this case as part of the aggravating factors, and we did not incorporate the Commonwealth’s proposed verdict slip because it was not limited to the statutory language in Section 9711.
