1 JUDGE SMITH: The Court is called to 2 Order for the Annual Memorial Service. On 3 behalf of the Court, I want to welcome the 4 family, friends, and colleagues of Judge Garb,
5 Mark Refowich, and Jay Scherline. The Court
6 recognizes the President of the Northampton
7 County Bar Association, Stanley Margle,
8 Esquire.

9 MR. MARGLE: Thank you, Judge Smith.
10 May I please the Court, Judges of the Court of 11 Common Pleas of Northampton County, I would 12 also like to recognize the Commonwealth Court
13 Senior Judges Simpson, Hogan, Moran, and Judge
14 Zito's also with us today.

15 Ladies and gentlemen, I would also 16 like to welcome the family and friends of our 17 honorees today. This is a proud tradition at 18 Northampton County, something that we do once 19 per year to honor those members of our bar who 20 have passed away. We, today, need to honor 21 three of those members of our bar; Jay 22 Scherline, Mark Refowich, and Judge Garb.
23 I do not want to take the thunder from our 24 speakers today, so I'll just be very brief with 25 regard to our three honorees.

1 Jay Scherline; I did not know Jay
2 very well, but what I did know about him was 3 his warm smile, his handshake, and his 4 willingness to help our very young members of 5 the bar. He was a member primarily of the 6 Lehigh County Bar, but became very close to 7 members in the Northampton County Bar. He came 8 to our meetings, our outings, and he was 9 welcome. In fact, there was a rumor he even 10 liked Northampton County more than he liked 11 Lehigh County by the end of his practice. We 12 miss him, we are going to miss him. He is gone 13 too soon.

14 Secondly, Mark Refowich. Mark was 15 one of the first members of the Bar that I met 16 when I came to practice in 1983. And quickly I
17 had a divorce case with Mark and had a 18 perfectly wonderful settlement agreement to 19 propose to Mark. So I went up to him, said,
20 Attorney Refowich, I've got this deal for you, 21 it's going to make your client very happy. I 22 proposed the deal, and he looked at me and he 23 said one word: trial. And he meant it. And we 24 went to trial, where he proceeded to prevail, 25 of course.

1 But underneath that very tough
2 exterior is a very, very skilled trial lawyer.
3 And most importantly, a teddy bear. He really 4 was. Even though he gave you that tough 5 exterior and said trial probably to every 6 member of our Bar here today at one point or 7 another, he was very willing to accommodate any 8 requests that you wanted. He was very 9 courteous and very professional in his dealings
10 with members of the Bar. We're going to miss 11 him, too.

12 And finally, Judge Garb. When we 13 had a short bench years ago, we had the 14 distinct honor and pleasure of having Judge 15 Garb join us as a Senior Judge. He really 16 helped out the bench and helped out the Bar.
17 He was preceeded by a very small reputation for 18 integrity, wisdom, and his demeanor on the 19 bench. He was tough but fair. We've heard 20 that a lot about Judges, but he really was.

21 I remember trying a very difficult
22 case with Judge Garb, prevailing -- yes, I did 23 prevail -- and I went to the Superior Court and 24 I stood in front of the Superior Court and the 25 first thing I said to the three-member panel

1 was that this case was tried before one of the 2 most distinguished and most experienced trial
3 Judges in Pennsylvania. And I remember,
4 distinctly, all three members of the Superior
5 Court nodded in unison. They all acknowledged 6 and knew who he was.

7 He also helped Northampton County by 8 establishing what we have now as a pretrial 9 conference procedure. Every case, every 10 custody case that comes before the bench, is 11 preceeded by a pretrial conference. We try to 12 settle it, keep it away from our Judges. Judge 13 Garb has now become a verb. Every case must be 14 Garbed before it goes to trial. And we say 15 that affectionately. We miss Judge Garb, and 16 we wish his family well.

17 Thank you for your time. I'd like 18 to turn this program back over to Judge Smith.

19 JUDGE SMITH: Thank you very much.
20 The Court recognizes Stephen G. Baratta, 21 President Judge.

22 JUDGE BARATTA: Good morning. Bear
23 with me, I'm getting over a bit of a cold, but 24 I've been given the honor of memorializing
25 Judge Garb. Let me first start by providing a

1 brief biographical history. Isaac S. Garb was 2 born on June 19th, 1929, in Trenton, New 3 Jersey. He was married for forty-seven years
4 to his wife, Joan. Joan passed away in 2009.
5 The Garbs have three children; Emily, Maggie,
6 and Charles, and a granddaughter, Ava.

7 At the time of his death, December
8 3rd, 2012, Judge Garb resided in Bucks County,
9 Buckingham Township. Now, Judge Garb grew up
10 in Trenton and apparently he was quite a 11 football player, which is hard for me to 12 believe because I remember Judge Garb being 13 about this high and he weighed about a hundred 14 pounds. Still, he must've been pretty tough, 15 because he received a football scholarship to 16 Methodist College.

17 Unfortunately, and probably not 18 surprisingly, his football career did not 19 progress as he expected. He was pretty well
20 beaten up and returned to New Jersey to enroll 21 in Rutgers. He graduated in 1951, and 22 thereafter he enlisted into the United States
23 Army.

24 He was assigned to the County
25 Intelligence Unit in Washington and there,

1 according to his daughter, Maggie, Judge Garb
2 chased spies and Communists within the United 3 States Government. He was honorably discharged
4 in 1953 and began law school at the University 5 of Pennsylvania. He graduated in 1956, and 6 instead of practicing law, he spent almost a 7 year hitchhiking around Europe and the Middle 8 East.

9 When he returned he began the 10 general practice of law in Doylestown,
11 Pennsylvania. In his early years, Judge Garb
12 was an Assistant Public Defender, then he moved 13 on to the United States Attorney's office for 14 the Eastern District of Pennsylvania .

15 He resigned in 1962 because he ran 16 on a democratic ticket for state assembly, but 17 he ran as a democrat in Bucks County. He was 18 on a ticket with the famed novelist James 19 Michener, also a Democrat. True to form, both 20 Judge Garb and Mr. Michener lost, but 21 fortunately, democratic registration did not 22 interfere with his political career, because in 23 1966, at the age of 37, he was appointed by the 24 Republican Governor William Scranton to the 25 Bench in Bucks County.

1 After he survived one election and 2 three retention elections, he served 3 continuously for thirty-three years until the 4 mandatory retirement age of 70. When he 5 reached 70, he began serving as a Senior Judge
6 for another eight years until he sat as a 7 Senior Judge in both Bucks County and 8 Northampton County. Here he presided over 9 criminal trials, civil trials, and he spent a 10 fair amount of time in our Juvenile Court.

11 One of the more impressive aspects
12 of Judge Garb's services to this Court was that 13 he accepted all assignments and, surprisingly, 14 he worked for free. We made quite a lot of 15 profit off of Judge Garb. And when I say he 16 worked for free, literally, he worked for free.
17 After about April, the stipend that we had for 18 Senior Judges ran out for Judge Garb, and from 19 April to December, he worked nearly full-time 20 for no pay, because he loved to work.

21 In 2007, at the age of 78, Judge
22 Garb was forced to step down as a Senior Judge.
23 Thereafter, he continued to work in Northampton
24 and Bucks County, where he sat as a Juvenile 25 Court Master and a Custody Master. Judge Garb

1 gladly accepted other assignments that our 2 President Judge was able to delegate to him.
3 He also remained continuously available to 4 discuss the art of Court Administration. He 5 was a very valuable asset to the Northampton
6 County judiciary, the local Bar Association,
7 and to the citizens of Northampton County.

8 Now, if the Judge were here today he 9 would probably tell you that his work in 10 Juvenile Court was his most important work, and 11 it was really the work that he loved the most.
12 Judge Garb was known to be an advocate for 13 children, especially those in need. Now,
14 besides the law, Judge Garb had other passions
15 including running, and I believe he was running 16 well into his 70's, at least five miles a day.
17 He tended to a vegetable garden, loved the 18 Metropolitan Opera, loved the New York Yankees,
19 and, to a lesser extent, the New York Football 20 Giants.

21 Now, as Judges we often love to 22 discuss our quote, unquote, famous cases. And 23 we all have cases that might have some local 24 notoriety or that we think are important cases.
25 Judge Garb had a number of famous cases with

1 two of the more particular cases that garnered 2 both national and international fame. One was 3 a murder case of 1983, and the other was a
4 civil case involving a very important
5 environmental issue that he rendered a decision 6 on in 1985. Then again in 1987, those two 7 cases were a wholly independent game
8 intertwined when he ran for his retention 9 election.

10 In the first case in 1983, he was 11 appointed by the Chief Justice of the 12 Pennsylvania Supreme Courts to handle a high 13 profile murder case, Commonwealth vs. William 14 Bradfield. Bradfield was accused of killing
15 Susan Reinert and her two children. And you 16 may have remembered this case, because it was 17 christened the Main Line Murders.

18 Both Bradfield and Reinert, the 19 victim, were teachers at Upper Marion High 20 School. They were also lovers. The theory in 21 the case was that Bradfield, after he was named 22 beneficiary to Reinert's insurance policy and 23 her estate, killed her for the money.
24 Allegedly, Bradfield had the help of the 25 Principal of the school, Jay Smith. It was

1 quite a horrific crime. They found Reinert in 2 her parked car in a parking deck in Harrisburg 3 with the trunk open on a weekend. She was 4 badly beaten and strangled. The children were 5 never found.

6 Bradfield at the time was -- he had 7 an airtight alibi, he thought, because he was 8 at the Jersey Shore with friends when she was 9 found. It was quite a case, covered by the 10 press both locally, nationally, and 11 internationally. Judge Garb, after Bradfield
12 was convicted, sentenced him to three 13 consecutive life sentences. But this story was 14 covered by Joseph Wambaugh, and became the 15 subject of a book called Echoes in the 16 Darkness, which was a national best seller, and 17 Judge Garb was prominently discussed in the 18 book.

19 Later in 1985, Judge Garb rendered a 20 decision in a contentious civil case which 21 permitted the construction of what you may have 22 heard before, the Point Pleasant Pumping 23 Station. The Pumping Station was part of 24 twenty years of political, legal, and 25 environmental dispute. The Pumping Station was

1 designed to divert almost a hundred million
2 gallons of water from the Delaware River each 3 day to two separate water companies and also 4 the Cool Nuclear Power Plant.

5 During the time that Judge Garb was 6 handling the dispute, the dispute was brought 7 by the commissioners of Bucks County to stop
8 the construction. There were continuous 9 protests against the plant for fear of its 10 environmental impact. Many protesters were 11 jailed for violating Court orders or engaging 12 in civil disobedience. It attracted the 13 attention of Abbie Hoffman who, according to 14 folklore, moved into a chicken coop on a Bucks
15 County farm to live and to head the protests.

16 Judge Garb was the center of much 17 animosity as he made it clear throughout the 18 case the turn on narrow principles of contract 19 law and the fact that Bucks County had 20 previously entered into a contract with 21 Philadelphia Ledger to permit the power plant 22 to be conducted.

23 During the case, Abbie Hoffman was 24 holding numerous press conferences. He accused 25 Garb of having a Napoleonic complex and at one

1 point he even called Judge Garb a Nazi, which I
2 can only assume is a very hostile slur, one
3 Jewish man calls another one a Nazi.

4 Judge Garb ruled that, based upon 5 the law, the plant should be built. Likely,
6 this decision was not one that Judge Garb
7 personally believed in, because in his private 8 life, Judge Garb was known to be politically 9 liberal, very concerned about his community.
10 He enjoyed nature and the outdoors and was very 11 socially conscious. I believe his sympathies
12 were with the protesters, and Judge Garb called 13 the case as he saw it. He was a man of 14 principle.

15 That decision jeopardized his 16 future. He was on the ballot the very next 17 ticket. Apparently, Abbie Hoffman made his 18 chicken coop a permanent home and he remained 19 in Bucks County and campaigned vigorously
20 against Judge Garb. Judge Garb won, not by a 21 lot, and there are those that say Joseph 22 Wambaugh's book was instrumental in helping 23 Judge Garb overcome the opposition, because the 24 book was released shortly before the election
25 and Wambaugh Heaped a lot of praise on Judge

1 Garb because, in his opinion, Judge Garb was 2 very competent, fair, and even-headed in that 3 case.

4 I would like to close with just a 5 couple personal observations. If one would 6 talk before those who appeared before Judge
7 Garb in a Courtroom, whether litigant, lawyer, 8 or just observer, the descriptors such as 9 intelligent, organized, hard working, fair,
10 efficient, compassionate would be the words 11 generally used to describe Judge Garb and his 12 abilities. And those words are very accurate.

13 He was also, as I said before, a 14 very principle man. Judge Garb also had a very 15 paternalistic personality, and by that I mean 16 very fatherly. He was very caring and often 17 looked to the redeeming features of a person, 18 especially when he was in Juvenile Court. He 19 never turned an assignment down despite 20 complexity or political risk, and even though 21 he was all business in the Courthouse, I knew 22 him to have a gentle humor. And when I say 23 gentle humor, I mean he could find humor in 24 every day life without depreciating others.

25 He was just an interesting guy and I

1 loved talking to him. We used to talk for 2 hours about Court Administration. He was 3 always concerned about the efficiency of the 4 Court system and how we could possibly make it 5 better. His paternalistic side really
6 resonated with me, because I found myself
7 wanting to do better and be a better Judge 8 after I talked to Judge Garb. And some might 9 say Judge Garb may have been a man of small 10 physical stature, but he was a legal giant in 11 the field of Court here in Pennsylvania.

12 He was a good man, also, and if I
13 may use a term that's fallen out of favor
14 sometimes, I would define Judge Garb also as a 15 man's man. He was just a neat guy to be 16 around.

17 JUDGE SMITH: Thank you, President
18 Judge Baratta. The Court now recognizes 19 Attorney Daniel E. Cohen, who is going to 20 eulogize Mark Refowich.

21 MR. COHEN: Good morning. May I
22 please the Court, the Honorable Judges of the 23 Court of Common Pleas of Northampton County,
24 Judges Moran, Hogan, and Simpson, Elvira,
25 colleagues, and friends of Mark Refowich.

1 Mark Refowich was one of the truly
2 unforgettable characters of our generation. A
3 graduate of Liberty High School, Pennsylvania
4 State University, and the Law School of Temple
5 University, he returned to the Lehigh valley in 6 1965 and soon became the associate under the 7 firm name of the late Herbert Fishbone, 8 eventually partnering under the firm name of 9 Fishbone and Refowich. They subsequently were 10 joined by Judge William Moran for a period of 11 time, and then Joel Scheer.

12 Mark maintained a broad general
13 practice with emphasis on criminal law and 14 worker's compensation. In the late 80s, Mark 15 struck out on his own and maintained a private 16 practice, first by himself and then with his 17 wife and soulmate, Elvira LaBarre. He served 18 in the United States Army and Reserves, 19 eventually attaining the rank of Captain. He 20 was also an avid pilot. Our offices adjoined 21 each other for almost twenty years. That 22 recitation of these facts reveals very little 23 about the person who was Mark Refowich.

24 The passion of Mark's career was 25 criminal law, and he was passionate. As are

1 many in the practices of criminal law, he was 2 experienced, extremely knowledgeable, and 3 diligent. What was unique about Mark was the 4 fact he was able to be so effective on both 5 sides of the Courtroom.

6 First, at the beginning of his 7 practice, he was the defender of those accused 8 of a crime. Then he joined the District 9 Attorney's office, eventually attaining the 10 rank of First Assistant District Attorney and 11 Senior Trial Counsel, then again in the 1990s 12 as a defender of those accused of crime. He 13 was never a full-time District Attorney or 14 defender, but he probably tried as many cases 15 as anyone who has ever graced this Courtroom.

16 As an advocate, he was passionate,
17 aggressive, and sometimes combative and always 18 prepared. Whether prosecuting or defending,
19 Mark brought to the task intelligence,
20 preparation, and commitment. Some might think 21 that it's cynical that he could cross the 22 aisle. To him it was the most natural thing in 23 the world, because he truly believed everyone, 24 defendant or Commonwealth, deserved the best 25 representation he could get. And that's what

1 Mark gave them, the best representation they 2 could get.

3 He never shied away from the 4 difficult case, handling numerous murder cases
5 as well as other major felonies. And whomever 6 he was up against knew that they were going to 7 be in for a fight. Some would say that Mark
8 took himself too seriously, but I would counter 9 that Mark took himself as seriously as you took 10 him. He possessed an excellent sense of humor 11 but was reluctant to let down the facade of 12 touchiness. When he did so, he could be 13 utterly charming. He would probably be private 14 with that description himself.

15 A mentor from the very beginning of 16 his practice, I came back to the county in 1968
17 to practice and I accompanied Mark to numerous 18 hearings before many District Magistrates, or 19 as they were then know, Justices of the Peace.
20 Particularly involving those hearings
21 surrounding the Pagan Motorcycle Gang. Those 22 guys are some of the toughest people you will 23 ever encounter. They were murderers, burglars, 24 just plain thugs, and Mark handled them with 25 toughness, fairness, and a totally no-nonsense

1 attitude. As a result, he was universally 2 respected by his clients whether they were 3 criminal defendants or victims in the DA's 4 office.

5 Over the next 40 years and more, he 6 mentored many, many young attorneys of law, 7 again on both sides of the aisle. He was 8 always available to answer questions and 9 discuss trial strategies. He was universally 10 respected by members of the Bar and this Court, 11 by the Appellate Courts of Pennsylvania, by the 12 Military Courts where he also practiced very 13 quietly and again very effectively. Elvira 14 received many kind notes from members of the 15 Bar Association, both from Judges and lawyers.
16 From one of our Judges: I have many wonderful 17 memories of Mark from my days as a young 18 prosecutor. He was a wonderful trial attorney 19 and an exceptional man.

20 Another of our Judges: I remembered 21 him at the Call of the Arraignment list as the 22 formidable prosecutor, defense lawyer, and a 23 friend. From an attorney: I will always 24 remember him as a good friend, skilled trial
25 lawyer, a gentleman, and a consummate

1 professional. From another attorney: We will 2 always remember Mark's kindness. He was always 3 helpful to young lawyers, always willing to 4 stop and answer questions. Finally, from a 5 fellow attorney: Mark is the one who got me to 6 switch hats from PD to DA in 1980. Despite his 7 purposely gruff exterior, we all knew that he 8 was a marshmallow inside, and I mean that in 9 the nicest way possible. All of us knew he 10 cared about us as people.

11 Some of the Courthouse staff who 12 called him a great man, kind man, a very 13 special person, always a gentleman. One of the 14 clerks from the Prothonotary's office reminded 15 me that Mark would always yell 'service' when 16 he came into that office, always creating 17 smiles with his own smile.

18 He was most famous at the Bar for 19 the way which he answered the call of the trial 20 list. To those who are not familiar with the 21 process, our Court, at the beginning of each 22 trial week and day, in this room, recites the 23 name of each case and asks the responsible 24 attorney to respond as to whether the case is 25 ready for trial or not. invariably, Mark would

1 answer in a very consistent way.

2 I ask the members of the criminal 3 Bar, prosecutors, and Defense lawyers, on the 4 count of three to tell me how Mark answered it 5 and what his tone of voice was in each and 6 every one of his cases: Trial. That's what he 7 did and he meant it. He was always ready to go
8 to trial and he was never intimidated. Mark 9 was truly unforgettable, and he will not be 10 forgotten. Thank you.

11 JUDGE SMITH: Thank you, Attorney
12 Cohen. The Court now recognizes Adam Meshkov, 13 Esquire, who is going to eulogize Jay
14 Scherline, Esquire.

15 MR. MESHKOV: Thank you, Judge
16 Smith. Honorable members of the bench and Bar 17 Association, it is my great and sincere honor 18 to speak about my friend, Jay Scherline. As 19 indicated by Attorney Margle, there are more
20 active and more visible in the Lehigh County 21 Bar Association, and I was going to say some 22 words about that, but my sense is that most of 23 the people in this room have either heard of 24 Jay or met Jay personally, and he was just that 25 kind of guy.

1 When my wife and partner Eleanor 2 Breslin and I started our practice here in the 3 Lehigh Valley about five years ago, there were 4 two people who really stood out and helped us
5 along and essentially contributed and made us
6 into the attorneys that we are and the people 7 that we are. The first was Nick Zanakos, he is 8 a 50 plus year member of this Bar. Nick was 9 our first landlord. He provided us a location.
10 And the second was Jay Scherline, and Jay
11 Scherline provided us the community.

12 He was, himself, like a community, a 13 one-man community. His personality, his 14 enthusiasm, he was like a force of nature as he 15 moved through the room. We met Jay and his 16 wife Lori at a Bench Bar meeting in Washington, 17 DC through the Lehigh County Bar Association.
18 And I think we met them perhaps during the 19 first night's cocktail hour and the connection 20 was sort of immediate. Jay liked to talk and 21 we liked to listen, and so it was a match made 22 in heaven. And I think he gave me a stack of 23 his business cards, perhaps, in the first -- 24 maybe the first conversation, second 25 conversation, something like that, and I still

1 have those.

2 In some ways, Jay and my personality
3 couldn't have been more different. He was a
4 very outgoing person, I'm not as much, but, you
5 know, he afforded me respect and we developed 6 immediately a sense of mutual respect. And he 7 was that kind of guy with everyone, no matter 8 what your standing was, no matter what your 9 social background was. He was respectful
10 towards all. So we established a personal -- a 11 business relationship, rather, that carried 12 very quickly into a personal one. One that I 13 very much valued and will miss.

14 He and his wife Lori invited my 15 family to break the fast at Yom Kippur after 16 perhaps only knowing us a year. And that was 17 something that we looked forward to and that we 18 did do every year until his untimely passing.
19 And the people that were in attendance were 20 very telling to me of Jay and Lori's openness 21 to the world, Jews of all backgrounds, all 22 economic and social backgrounds, that he and 23 Lori opened their home to.

24 So Jay was great and everybody that 25 I ever met who he referred me to or he referred

1 to me or we had a mutual connection concerning 2 echoed that same sentiment. And nearly every 3 person, every potential client that he referred 4 to me had had a personal conversation with Jay.
5 And he just had that way about him. He touched 6 everyone and he had the time for everyone, so 7 it seemed.

8 So I would say I came through Jay
9 Scherline or Jay referred, you know, me to you, 10 and I would say Jay's great, and they would 11 always say that's right, Jay's great. They 12 would always echo that exact same sentiment.
13 And you know, thinking about this talk,
14 thinking about what was it that made Jay great, 15 and his personality was obviously very 16 attractive. That's what attracted people to 17 him. But in my view, what really made him 18 great were his actions, and not necessarily his 19 words or his demeanor.

20 Jay was a doer, and like a lot of 21 attorneys, he was constantly around. But I 22 think the reason that he was running around was 23 somewhat different than why other attorneys 24 were running around. He was running around to 25 make some type of contribution to the

1 community. He was overly involved in his 2 community. In fact, he was the most 3 community-oriented person I have ever met. He 4 was a man of the people who gave back, I am
5 certain, not only monetarily, but I know more 6 importantly of his time.

7 He was active in the Miracle League 8 for disabled children, very active, as 9 mentioned, in the Bar Association of Lehigh
10 County and various other community associations 11 and activities. And I know this because he 12 invited me to some of these events. And I know 13 at an organizational level he gave back, but 14 there were people that would come to my office 15 through Jay who would recount to me that he had 16 done some type of substantial legal work for 17 them without any requests for a fee. That, to 18 me, is pretty remarkable.

19 I mean, literally would file this 20 and raise an estate for a widow without the 21 request for a percentage or any type of 22 monetary compensation. That's more pro bono
23 than certainly I have done, but I think serves 24 as a very positive example and resonated in my 25 thinking about what to say today.

1 So he was a very visible attorney
2 who cared deeply about his community and the 3 people in it. He was a credit to this Bar
4 Association, to our neighboring Bar
5 Association, and to our profession. His 6 passing has left a gap in our community and he 7 will not only be personally missed by me, but 8 by those that he represented and helped. I
9 thank you for this opportunity.

10 JUDGE SMITH: Thank you very much,
11 Attorney Meshkov. It's now my opportunity to 12 make a few remarks before we adjourn today, and 13 I will remind you that there is going to be a 14 reception in the jury lounge immediately
15 following the Memorial Service.

16 What amazes me about Judge Garb is 17 how he came later in life to the Northampton 18 County Bench and quickly became one of the most 19 beloved members of this Bench or of this Bar.
20 There's no one that encountered him that did 21 not leave without a great deal of respect. He 22 is properly honored here today.

23 He became a mentor to me almost 24 immediately because he just knew everything
25 there was to know about being a Judge and about

1 being a good human being. As for Mark
2 Refowich, there's one line I can never forget
3 and that's: I need a tune up. No deals, I
4 need a tune up. No matter what you would say 5 to him.

6 And when I became a Judge, he was 7 one of the few lawyers in Northampton County
8 certified to handle capital cases, so I had 9 several capital cases with him, and he had a 10 few lines with respect to those, but most of 11 those I can't say here, but they had to do with 12 his clients and how he can't shine certain 13 things.

14 Mark always took his job very 15 seriously. He would not want anything to be 16 sad today. He would expect us all to be 17 laughing and to remember just what a great 18 impact he left on this Bench and on this Bar 19 and on the criminal justice system, especially 20 here in Northampton County.

21 And Jay Scherline I did not know
22 well other than his commercials, everyone knows
23 Scherline and Associates. He was obviously a 24 very successful not only lawyer and 25 businessman, but obviously as a gentleman and

1 as a member of the community.

2 These are three giants of the law
3 and we do honor them here today. And to the 4 families, just a story the United States
5 Supreme Court once said: The law is a jealous 6 mistress. And we recognize that you had to 7 surrender a lot of your time and sacrifice your 8 time with these three men because we needed 9 them, and they made a great impact here. And 10 as much as you love them, they were also loved 11 by us, and they will be remembered by us, as 12 they are remembered by you.

13 Their names and stellar reputations
14 are known beyond Northampton County, and these 15 friends and colleagues will not be forgotten.
16 They set the standards for others to emulate, 17 and their memories will endure in the hearts of 18 our Bench and our Bar.

19 As we adjourn today, may we go
20 solemnly but also happily, remembering what 21 they have done for us individually but also for 22 the Bench, the Bar, and the citizens of 23 Northampton County. Thank you very much.

24 (Memorial Service concludes.)
