Similar to the crime scene photographs, we respectfully submit that the admitted photographs were not inflammatory even though they were autopsy photographs. The only photograph that was potentially inflammatory was Photograph G of Merhi's autopsy insofar as it showed the front of her naked upper torso and her face. However, the Commonwealth limited the potentially inflammatory nature of seeing her naked upper torso and eyes by covering (or redacting) both her eyes and her breasts in the photograph admitted and published to the jury. Additionally, during Dr. Samuel Land's testimony regarding the autopsy photographs, we provided the jury with another cautionary instruction to limit any potential that the photographs would inflame the passions of the jury, as follows:

... Ladies and gentlemen, there are some additional photographs that are about to be shown to you to aid you in understanding the testimony of the witness as [to] the nature and extent of the injuries suffered by the victim[s].

These photographs are unpleasant. But you must not let your emotions be stirred to the prejudice of the defendant. But rather, you should view the evidence rationally and fairly. Is there any member of the jury who cannot follow this instruction? If so, please raise your hand. There is no response.

[Day One Tr., at 102-103.]

Nonetheless, even if the photographs were inflammatory, we respectfully submit that the photographs were admissible to explain the nature and history of the case pursuant to the Supreme Court's decisions in Saranchak and Commonwealth v. Eichinger, 591 Pa. 1, 915 A.2d 1122 (2007). In Eichinger, the defendant had proceeded through a stipulated guilt-phase bench trial in a case involving the murder of a mother and her three-year-old daughter. During the penalty hearing, the Commonwealth sought to introduce autopsy testimony including an autopsy report and photographs. The defendant objected to this testimony because although the autopsy report and photographs might be relevant to prove his specific intent to kill, that fact had already been proven during the guilt phase and the introduction of descriptions of the wounds and of photographs had no evidentiary value in proving aggravating factors, but instead could only serve to inflame the minds and passions of the jury.

Id. at 1141-42. In addition, the defendant argued that the autopsy photographs were proffered merely to create an atmosphere of prejudice against the defendant. Id.

The Commonwealth argued that the autopsy photographs were admissible to show the history and natural development of the case as decided by the Court in Saranchak. The Commonwealth pointed out that the jury was only empanelled for the penalty phase and, thus, did not hear any of the facts during the guilt phase. The trial court agreed with the Commonwealth and overruled the defendant's objection.

The Supreme Court concluded that the trial court did not commit an abuse of discretion by admitting the autopsy evidence. Id. The Court noted that the trial court had conducted the appropriate two-part evaluation of the photographs and determined that even if some of the photographs were inflammatory, the photographs were of greater evidentiary value than of prejudicial concern. Id. In addition, the Court pointed out that the trial court carefully guarded against any potential prejudice. Id. More specifically, the trial court had (1) properly recognized the relevancy of a photograph of the three-year-old victim showing a close-up of her face, but had taken adequate steps to sanitize the potentially inflammatory nature of the photograph by requiring the Commonwealth to cover the victim's face; and (2) provided the jury with a cautionary instruction concerning the photographs. Id. Further, the Court explained that there was no evidence that the Commonwealth sought to enter these photographs merely to prejudice the jury. Rather, they served to inform the jury as to the nature of [the defendant]'s acts. Any autopsy testimony that related to these photographs was also clearly admissible under Saranchak as necessary to explain the history and natural development of the facts of the case.

Id.

As in Eichinger, the sentencing jury did not have a prior opportunity to hear about the nature and circumstances of the murders because the appellant pleaded guilty to four counts of first-degree murder. Thus, the autopsy photographs we admitted in this case were necessary to assist Dr. Land in his testimony regarding the wounds suffered by the victims and to explain the nature and circumstances of the murders at issue. Moreover, we attempted to sanitize the potentially inflammatory nature of the photographs by (1) requiring that the Commonwealth introduce the photographs in black and white, and (2) providing the jury with a cautionary instruction. Further, the Commonwealth covered Merhi's eyes and breasts in Photograph G of her autopsy photographs. There was also no evidence that the Commonwealth sought to enter the autopsy photographs merely to prejudice the jury.

In addition, while these photographs were autopsy photographs showing wounds on parts of the victims' naked bodies, the photographs were not similar to other photographs that the Court has previously found inadmissible because of their gruesome nature. See e.g., Commonwealth v. Powell, 428 Pa. 275, 279, 241 A.2d 119, 121 (1968) (holding trial court abused discretion in admitting colored slides of the murdered victim's body considering any potential relevance to first-degree felony murder case was outweighed by emotional impact on jury); Commonwealth v. Eckhart, 430

Pa. 311, 317, 242 A.2d 271 (1968) (concluding trial court abused discretion and erred in admitting photograph of victim's skull after performance of autopsy, showing fissures on skull by pulling scalp forward as "[t]he jury saw a skull and a tangled mass of bloody hair and part of a bloody scalp"). Therefore, we respectfully submit that the admitted autopsy photographs were not inflammatory and, even if the Court were to determine that they were, the photographs were of such essential evidentiary value that their need clearly outweighed the likelihood of inflaming the minds and passions of the jury. Accordingly, we respectfully submit that we did not commit an abuse of discretion by admitting the aforementioned autopsy photographs.

C. Alleged Improper Cross-Examination of Various Witnesses

In his original concise statement and supplemental concise statement, the appellant raises various allegations of error relating to the Commonwealth's cross-examination of four of his mitigation witnesses: Dr. Ruben Gur, Penny L. Sines, Dr. Richard Fruncillo and Dr. Gerald Cooke. As discussed below, none of the appellant's allegations of error have merit.

1. Ruben Gur, Ph.D.

In his original and supplemental concise statements, the appellant raises various contentions that we erred in permitting the Commonwealth to cross-examine Ruben Gur, Ph.D., in certain areas. More specifically, the appellant argues that we erred in permitting the Commonwealth to cross-examine Dr. Gur concerning (1) the Commonwealth's belated receipt of the appellant's MRI report, (2) Dr. Gur's personal belief about the death penalty, (3) Dr. Gur's testimony in eleven prior state and federal cases because the cases were irrelevant and did not show bias, and (4) Dr. Gur's proposed testimony in a federal case, United States v. Lisa Montgomery, in which the federal court precluded certain aspects of Dr. Gur's testimony. We respectfully submit that none of these issues warrant relief in this case.

a. Admissibility of expert testimony/cross-examination of witnesses and experts.

Dr. Gur testified on the appellant's behalf as an expert in the fields of neuropsychology and neuroimaging. [Notes of Testimony—Volume Five ("Day Five Tr."), 5-16-11, at 4-5.] We note that "the admissibility of expert testimony is vested within the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be overturned unless the trial court commits an abuse of ... discretion." Commonwealth v. Galvin, 603 Pa. 625, 985 A.2d 783, 801 (2009) (citing Commonwealth v. Petrovich, 538 Pa. 369, 372, 648 A.2d 771, 772 (1994)); see Commonwealth v. Spiewak, 533 Pa. 1, 7 n.4, 617 A.2d 696, 699 n.4 (1992) (explaining that appellate court will not reverse trial court's determination concerning admissibility of evidence unless trial court abuses discretion). In addition, "[t]he scope of cross-examination is a matter within the discretion of the trial court and will not be reversed absent an abuse of that discretion.” Commonwealth v. Chmiel, 585 Pa. 547, 889 A.2d 501, 527 (2005) (citation and quotation marks omitted).

Additionally, Rule 611(b) of the Pennsylvania Rules of Evidence provides that “[c]ross-examination of a witness other than a party in a civil case should be limited to the subject matter of the direct examination and matters affecting credibility; however, the court may, in the exercise of discretion, permit inquiry into additional matters as if on direct examination.” Pa. R.E. 611(b). With regard to expert witnesses, attorneys are permitted to impeach an expert witness concerning that witness’ credibility and to probe the witness’ interest or partiality. See Spino v. John S. Tilley Ladder Company, 448 Pa. Super. 327, 351-52, 671 A.2d 726, 738 (1996) (“A party is entitled to cross-examine an expert witness to explore the credibility of the witness and to inquire into any potential bias, interest or relationship which could [a]ffect the testimony of the witness.”), aff’d on other grounds, 548 Pa. 286, 696 A.2d 1169 (1997). Moreover, a prosecutor is entitled to cross-examine a witness about “any facts tending to refute inferences arising from matters raised during direct testimony [and] omissions or acts that are inconsistent with his testimony.” Commonwealth v. Begley, 566 Pa. 239, 780 A.2d 605, 627 (2001). We also note that

[c]ross-examination is the principal means by which the believability of a witness and the truth of his testimony are tested. Subject always to the broad discretion of a trial judge to preclude repetitive and unduly harassing interrogation, the cross-examiner is not only permitted to delve into the witness’ story to test the witness’ perceptions and memory, but the cross-examiner has traditionally been allowed to impeach, i.e., discredit, the witness.

Davis v. Alaska, 415 U.S. 308, 316, 94 S. Ct. 1105, 1105, 39 L. Ed. 2d 347 (1974).

b. Dr. Gur’s testimony on direct examination.

In this case, the appellant presented Dr. Gur as part of his mitigation case to testify about his alleged brain damage.³⁹ Dr. Gur testified that he obtained his doctorate degree in clinical psychology in 1973 and he has been a professor at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine since 1980. [Day Five Tr., at 4-5.]⁴⁰ Dr. Gur also serves as director of the neuropsychology department and as the director of the Brain Behavior Laboratory. [Id. at 6.]

³⁹ We accepted Dr. Gur as an expert in the fields of neuropsychology and neuroimaging. [Day Five Tr., at 12.]

⁴⁰ Dr. Gur started as an assistant professor at the University of Pennsylvania in 1974. [Day Five Tr., at 5.]

Dr. Gur conducted a neuropsychological assessment of the appellant based upon the results of the appellant's neuropsychological testing by Dr. Gerald Cooke. [Id. at 12.]⁴¹ The appellant also was subjected to a positron emission tomography ("PET") scan and a magnetic resonance imaging ("MRI") exam. [Id. at 12-13, 59.] In analyzing the appellant's brain, Dr. Gur explained that he applied an algorithm to Dr. Cooke's test results. [Id. at 44-46.] After applying the algorithm to the test results, Dr. Gur opined that the appellant has "brain damage that is most likely related to the frontal, the middle of the frontal lobe and the back of the ear, more parietal damage." [Id. at 50-51.]

Dr. Gur indicated that concerning the appellant's PET scan "there are several areas where there is a significant difference between [the appellant's] values and what is normal." [Id. at 75.] Dr. Gur pointed out that (1) the appellant's frontal lobe is overactive, and (2) the superior and inferior temporal lobes, and part of both the hippocampus and amygdala, were several standard deviations below normal. [Id. at 75-76.] Regarding the MRI and PET scans of the appellant's amygdala, Dr. Gur explained that because it's small and damaged, it will not be very good at doing its job which is picking up danger and threat. And so it will become activated even when there is no real danger.

And once it becomes activated because it's small, the activity will spread very quickly. ... [S]ince the frontal lobe is already working overtime, it's like a car that starts racing when your foot is already on the gas.

[Id. at 77.] As for the frontal lobe, Dr. Gur stated that the MRI showed a loss of tissue in that area and the PET scan showed hyperactivation. [Id. at 78.]

Dr. Gur further indicated that "if you put together [Dr. Cooke's] results, the MRI results and the PET results, they indicate brain damage in the cortical regions. If you look at the subcortical areas that PET and MRI can measure, they are congruent in indicating damage in amygdala, hippocampus and other limbic structures." [Id. at 80.] The brain damage in the appellant's amygdala and frontal lobe would diminish the appellant's ability to modulate. [Id.] Additionally, Dr. Gur explained that the frontal lobe will lead to inhibitions, irritability, lability, poor planning, manic risk taking, preservation. Once you start something, you can't stop.

So damage in the frontal lobe will have protrude deficit in assisting behavior to the context to the big picture, be able to plan, to have mental flexibility, to know when to stop doing something, how to inhibit impulses, and how to exercise judgment.

[Id. at 80-81.] Based on the foregoing observations, Dr. Gur testified to a reasonable degree of neuropsychological and neuroimaging certainty that the appellant's brain had brain damage. [Id. at 82.]

During cross-examination of Dr. Gur, the Commonwealth cross-examined Dr. Gur about various areas. The appellant challenges our rulings permitting the Commonwealth to inquire into four different areas:

c. The missing MRI report.

The appellant first contends that we improperly allowed the Commonwealth to ask Dr. Gur about an MRI report that he failed to turn over to the Commonwealth until the morning before his testimony. More specifically, during Dr. Gur's cross-examination, the Commonwealth showed Dr. Gur the MRI report from the radiologist who reviewed the appellant's MRI. [Id. at 84; Commonwealth's Exhibit 42.] The District Attorney asked Dr. Gur if it was part of the report that Dr. Gur gave to him and Dr. Gur replied that he had provided it to him. [Day Five Tr., at 85.] The District Attorney then asked Dr. Gur whether he had to ask Dr. Gur for the MRI report because it was not included in the original reports that Dr. Gur provided to the Commonwealth. [Id.] Dr. Gur responded to the question by stating that he did not understand why the Commonwealth asked for this report. [Id.] Next, the District Attorney asked Dr. Gur, "You did not supply that MRI report to me until this morning when I specifically asked for it; correct?" [Id.] As Dr. Gur began to answer the permissible leading question, the appellant objected. [Id.]

The appellant appeared to object to the question because the MRI report was not part of the information that Dr. Gur relied upon in rendering his opinion in the case. [Id.] The Commonwealth responded to this objection by noting that the court ordered the appellant's release for this particular MRI at the appellant's request. [Id. at 86.] Thus, the Commonwealth was permitted to inquire why, even though the radiologist issued a report, Dr. Gur did not include the report with his original report or on the DVD he provided to the appellant which the appellant later turned over to the Commonwealth in discovery. [Id.]

We submit that we properly allowed the Commonwealth to ask Dr. Gur questions about this particular MRI report and why he failed to consider it as part of his report or otherwise provide the report to the Commonwealth until the time of trial. As developed later through Dr. Gur's testimony, the radiologist's February 2011 MRI report indicated that, inter alia, his MRI was an "unremarkable MRI of the brain." [Id. at 89; Commonwealth's Exhibit 42.] Thus, the radiologist's report appeared to conflict with Dr. Gur's finding of brain damage and the Commonwealth had the right to question Dr. Gur about his reasons for not including seemingly conflicting information in his possession with his report and for not turning over the report to the Commonwealth until shortly before his trial testimony.⁴² This line of questioning was relevant concerning Dr. Gur's credibility and the weight the jury should attribute to his opinion concerning the appellant's alleged brain damage.

d. Dr. Gur's beliefs about the propriety of the death penalty.

The appellant's second contention concerns the prosecution cross-examining Dr. Gur about his beliefs concerning the death penalty. We respectfully submit that this question was proper impeachment of Dr. Gur and relevant to his credibility and possible bias in this case. In addition, the probative value of this question concerning any potential bias on the part of Dr. Gur and the value of giving the jury a full and accurate view of Dr. Gur's credibility was not outweighed by any danger of unfair prejudice or the possibility of confusing the jury.

Nonetheless, we submit that even if the Court were to determine that we somehow erred in permitting the Commonwealth to ask Dr. Gur about his personal views on the death penalty, any such error was harmless. "[A]n error can be harmless only if the appellate court is convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the error is harmless." Commonwealth v. Story, 476 Pa. 391, 405-406, 383 A.2d 155, 162 (1978). Concerning the "harmless[ness]" of an error,

[h]armless error may be established in one of three ways: (1) the error did not prejudice the defendant or the prejudice was only de minimis; (2) the erroneously admitted evidence was cumulative of other properly admitted evidence; or (3) 'the prejudicial effect of the error is so insignificant by comparison to the other evidence that it is clear beyond a reasonable doubt that the error could not have contributed to the jury's decision regarding the death penalty.'

Commonwealth v. Smith, 580 Pa. 392, 861 A.2d 892, 897 (2004) (quoting Commonwealth v. Edmiston, 535 Pa. 210, 233, 634 A.2d 1078, 1090 (1993)).

Here, the admission of this testimony was harmless insofar as the error did not prejudice the appellant or, at best, the prejudice was only de minimis. In this regard, the Commonwealth was unable to show any possible bias on behalf of Dr. Gur through this testimony. Dr. Gur handled the question professionally, and he testified that although he is not a "strong proponent" of the death penalty he is also not opposed to the death penalty. [Id. at 104-105.] Dr. Gur also stated that he did advocate against the death penalty for juveniles. [Id. at 105.] Neither of these answers showed any bias and thus, any possible error could not have prejudiced the appellant in this case or otherwise improperly influenced the jury's deliberation about the appellant's mitigation evidence.

e. Dr. Gur's testimony in other cases.

The appellant's third claim is that we erred in permitting the Commonwealth to ask Dr. Gur about his testimony in other cases because the other cases were irrelevant to this case and the questioning did not show bias. We note that prior to this testimony (and after the Commonwealth's questions to Dr. Gur about his personal views on the death penalty), the Commonwealth inquired into Dr. Gur's experience signing affidavits to stop various executions. [Id. at 105-106.] The Commonwealth then asked Dr. Gur if his testimony was always the same when he testifies in death penalty cases, insofar as he always testifies that the defendant has brain damage. [Id. at 106.] At this point, the Commonwealth began to inquire into Dr. Gur's testimony in other cases in which he found that defendants facing the death penalty had brain damage and the appellant objected to this line of questioning. [Id. at 106-107.]

We respectfully submit that we did not err in permitting the Commonwealth to ask Dr. Gur about his testimony in other death penalty cases in which he determined that the defendants had brain damage.⁴³ While we have not located any Pennsylvania appellate court decisions addressing this issue, this area was a legitimate area of cross-examination into similar cases and similar issues to demonstrate a testimonial pattern and to evaluate Dr. Gur's credibility and the weight the jury should provide to his opinions about the appellant's alleged brain damage.⁴⁴

f. Federal court's exclusion of Dr. Gur's testimony in United States v. Lisa Montgomery.

The appellant's final issue concerning the Commonwealth's cross-examination of Dr. Gur relates to questions about a federal district court's ⁴³ After we overruled the Commonwealth's objection, the Commonwealth discussed Dr. Gur's prior testimony in ten cases, pointing out the similarities between his testimony in those cases and his testimony in this case. [Day Five Tr., at 109-17.] We recognize that the appellant has identified the Commonwealth's cross-examination in eleven cases, but we have separately discussed the eleventh case, United States v. Montgomery, infra, because the appellant has raised a separate claim with respect to the cross-examination relating to this case.

rejection of Dr. Gur's proposed testimony in the matter of United States v. Lisa Montgomery.⁴⁵ Prior to the Commonwealth's questions about this case, the appellant objected to the Commonwealth's line of questioning by arguing that the information was irrelevant. [Id. at 118.] The appellant also noted that (1) the court had already accepted Dr. Gur as an expert, (2) the information was highly prejudicial and was otherwise irrelevant to "this particular case, this particular witness, for this particular testimony today[.]" and (3) the federal courts use the standard for admissibility of expert testimony set forth by the United States Supreme Court in Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, 509 U.S. 579 (1993) instead of the standard set forth in Frye v. United States, 293 F. 1013 (D.C. Cir. 1923) used by Pennsylvania courts. [Id. at 118, 119-20.] In response to the objection, the Commonwealth claimed that the testimony was highly relevant because the federal court had excluded his testimony because his methodology was essentially "junk science." [Id. at 118-19.]

After hearing the parties' arguments, we permitted the Commonwealth's inquiry into the Montgomery case as it was part of the jury's determination of Dr. Gur's credibility and what weight to give to his testimony. [Id. at 119-20.] The appellant did not and cannot provide any support for the notion that the Commonwealth was precluded from cross-examining Dr. Gur about his proposed testimony in Montgomery simply because the federal court applied a different standard concerning the admissibility of the testimony. We respectfully submit that the prosecutor's questioning of Dr. Gur was relevant concerning his credibility and the reliability of his testimony, and the jury was permitted to evaluate the weight to be given to Dr. Gur's testimony based on this evidence. Moreover, the probative value of this evidence was not outweighed by any possible prejudice to the appellant.

We also respectfully submit even if this line of inquiry was improper, any such error was harmless. In this regard, we note that the Commonwealth asked Dr. Gur whether the district court in that case had excluded his testimony relating to a MRI and PET scan. [Id. at 120-23.] Both Dr. Gur and the District Attorney acknowledged that the appellate court had reviewed the district court's decision about Dr. Gur's testimony, and indicated that the doctor's testimony should have been permitted in the penalty phase, but the trial court's exclusion of the evidence was harmless. [Id. at 123-24.] Further, on redirect examination by the appellant's counsel, Dr. Gur discussed his understanding that the court had excluded his testimony because of issues with the data instead of issues with his opinions and, although he was able to prove the he used a similar analysis to examine Ms. Montgomery as he used in a document analyzing other healthy subjects, he was one week too late for the court's deadline. [Id. at 124-26.] Accordingly, any error would be harmless as the appellant was either not prejudiced at all by this testimony, or any such prejudice was de minimis.

2. Penny L. Sines

The appellant asserts that we erred in permitting the Commonwealth to cross-examine the appellant's witness, Penny L. Sines ("Sines"), insofar as the Commonwealth asked her (1) whether the appellant was a low risk to reoffend, and (2) about the parole board's decision to parole the appellant in 2007. These allegations of error lack merit.

During her testimony, Sines testified that she has been working as a social worker at the Department of Corrections ("DOC") since October 2002. [Notes of Testimony—Volume Three ("Day Three Tr."), 5-12-11, at 11.] She initially worked for the DOC at SCI Laurel Highlands and, while there, she served as the appellant's correctional counselor starting in 2005. [Id. at 11, 15.]⁴⁶

Sines explained that inmates can have jobs if they receive medical clearance, but every inmate should otherwise have a job. [Id. at 12.] One of those jobs is serving as a janitor in the elderly care area (or hospice unit), also known as the "A Unit." [Id.] Janitor jobs in the A Unit are very tough, and the jobs are unpopular and an inmate has to receive a special recommendation to do it. [Id. at 13, 19.] The inmates working in this unit interact with the elderly inmates insofar as they help them write requests, get beverages for them and otherwise socialize with them. [Id. at 13.] After going through the screening process, Sines recommended that the appellant work in the A Unit and he worked there for at least two years while Sines was at SCI Laurel Highlands. [Id. at 13, 19.]

Sines also testified that she was aware that the appellant had been in prison since 1992 by the time she initially met him in 2005. [Id. at 16-17.] Sines was aware of the appellant's reason for being in prison (the third-degree murder of Donald Richard), and his history of at least ten misconducts/incidents from 1992 until May 2005. [Id. at 16-17, 20-26.]

Despite this disciplinary history, Sines prepared the paperwork, set up the staffing and recommended that the parole board release the appellant on parole in 2007. [Id. at 17, 18.] If Sines had not recommended the appellant for parole, it could have at least hindered his parole possibilities. [Id. at 17.] Before the parole board rendered its decision, Sines prepared a parole review summary detailing the appellant's information so the board could make a decision. [Id. at 27.]

⁴⁶ A correctional counselor "does paperwork for parole, prerelease, they do annual correctional plans and notes any kind of contact ... with them." [Day Three Tr., at 12.] The counselor also recommends inmates for programming. [Id. at 15.]
